Success Stories

Have you always dreamed of owning your own home? Not sure where to start?

Buying your first home is something very thrilling and exciting at the same time. For most of us it's the biggest investment and the largest big ticket purchase of a lifetime. It can be a daunting challenge and very stressful experience at the same time. There's a lot to think about and a whole lot of information to take in.

At Moneykart, we understand this only too well. This booklet is designed with you in mind, to provide you with useful information and guide you through the process.

We'd love to be part of your home buying journey adding you to our long and ever growing list of first home buyers and others that we've helped get into their dream home.

Our Approach

We begin by listening to understand your unique situation and needs. Once we understand your needs we will review your position and what you are looking for. We will obtain all information necessary to put together your loan application. We will provide you with relevant information on all options available for you. Be it about interest rates, types of loans, lenders etc. We will then recommend the best solution based on your current situation that is most appropriate for your present needs.

With you, all the way

Once you are happy with your options and want to proceed with the application, we will put together your application package for submission to the lender(s) for assessment. We will not only find the home loan that is in your best interest; we will also help you structure your loan to ensure it is optimized for you. We go the extra mile for you. We negotiate on your behalf with the lenders and interface with other service providers like solicitors and real estate agents on your behalf.

Home buying Tips

Found a house you like? Here are some questions you could ask the listing real estate agent to get more information about the property.

- How long has it been on the market?
- What have nearby properties sold for recently?
- Was it owner occupied or rented out?
- What schools is it zoned for?
- Have there been any alterations? Are all alterations permitted and certified?
- Where are the property boundaries?
- What is the current council valuation and rates?
- Are there any zoning restrictions?
- Are there any issues with property maintenance or damage that the agent knows about? (Such as collapsed drains or leaking).

Go to open homes as early as possible Try to go to open homes as soon as you can. That way, if you're really keen on a place, you've got time to see it again. Plus you've got more time to do your research ('due diligence'), such as reading all the necessary reports, conducting inspections, arranging your finance and getting the legal paperwork sorted.

Take listing brochures away with you When you've been through 10 open homes, it can be hard to remember which one had the breakfast bar and which one had the ensuite. Salespeople normally have a range of materials available for you take away from an open home. Remember to take a pen so you can make your own notes about the property.

Look at the home privately Don't be afraid to ring an agent for a private viewing. Even if the property has an open home advertised, you can sometimes visit a property privately. This is a good idea as you'll most likely have the agent's undivided attention and you might be able to use the opportunity to put in an offer before anyone else.

Talk to the neighbours They may be able to share information about the property and the surrounding area that the real estate agent doesn't have.

Getting Home ready

Now that you've decided to buy your own home, you need to make sure that what you want to buy is within your range.

Your Deposit

The price you pay for purchasing your home is made up of two parts

i) The sum you will have to contribute towards your home. This is called a Deposit
Your deposit could be made up of

Your Savings + Your Kiwisaver + Gift from Family

ii) Your home loan or Mortgage. You will need to get this approved from the lender.

Even if you have less than the required 20% deposit there are a few options available.

The three main schemes that are available if you're a first home buyer are:

Welcome Home Loan

Handy if you don't have the 20% deposit.

KiwiSaver withdrawal* for first home

You may be able to put some of your KiwiSaver savings towards your first home.

Home Start grant*

You may be able to get a grant towards your first home. A Home grant can provide you a lump sum of between $3000 to $10,000 per person. To be eligible you will need to be a contributing member of Kiwisaver for at least three years with an income within the maximum threshold level. House price caps also apply.

For more details talk to your adviser.

Your Savings + Your Kiwisaver + Gift from Family + Home Loan = YOUR HOME

* Kiwisaver withdrawal may be available to pay deposit. Kiwisaver withdrawal is subject to application

This is a general guide. The process may vary a little if you are buying a house & land package, off the plans or at auction. Your adviser will guide you through the process.

How much can you afford?

The dollar amount of your deposit and the dollar amount of your home loan determine the total amount you can pay towards a house. Your loan amount depends on your 'ability to repay'. The bank will look at what you earn and what you spend to calculate what you can borrow.

When you apply for a home loan, the bank examines a number of factors before approving your application. Some of them are:

- Your income and its continuity
- How many dependents you have?
- What other debts and financial obligations do you have?
- Your spending patterns. Are you responsible with money?
- How much surplus you have to put towards repayments?
- Will you be able to cope with repayments should interest rates rise?
- Your overall financial position
- Your credit rating

Become a desirable borrower

The more 'desirable' you can demonstrate yourself to be, this will improve your 'lendability' and also have a bearing on the likelihood of your loan being approved. You can do this in several ways. These include but are not limited to:

- Demonstrating a regular savings pattern
- Paying off any high interest debt like hire purchases. Such debt reduces your loan serviceability thus affecting the loan amount you would be eligible for.
- Reducing the number of credit cards and /or their limits. The larger your credit card limit, the less you'll be able to borrow to buy a house, regardless of what's owing on your card. For example

Credit Card Limit	Reduction in Borrowing Power
$5,000	-$28,000
$10,000	-$47,000

- Limit your discretionary spending. Get rid of multiple magazine subscriptions. Cancel the gym membership if you aren't using it as you should.
- Pay off any money owed to any government agency like Inland Revenue. This could hinder you getting a loan.
- Check your credit rating. And sort out any issues it might throw up.

Insurance- Protecting your assets

Having made the biggest investment of your life, It is important you don't forget to protect your home or investment against the unexpected situations that life might throw at you. But it is not just the material possessions that need protection.

You are the most valuable asset for yourself and your family, so it makes sense to protect yourself from life's unexpected events.

Come to think of it as age silently creeps up on you and your responsibilities increase, you begin to realize that life is not a single straight journey. The journey of life comes with a number of twists and turns. Therefore to "expect the unexpected" in life is more a norm rather than an exception.

The house that you so lovingly transformed into a cosy home is probably your other most important asset. Our Insurance solutions are designed to provide you with "peace of mind" that comes with the secure knowledge that should anything unexpected happen to you, your family and home will be protected. From the many insurance solutions, available we will assist you in identifying the one that is best suited for your needs.

Contract: The Contract is the “Sale & Purchase Agreement” that is binding and enforceable.

Conveyancing: This is the work carried out by the lawyers to transfer ownership of the property from one person to another.

Deposit: This is the proportion of the purchase price (usually 5-10%) that is paid by the buyer when the agreement is signed or the conditions in the agreement are met.

Discharge: When a mortgage is discharge, it is repaid in full and formally removed from the title making it a “clear” title.

Easement: A right over the property of another, such as drainage easement over a neighboring property or a right of way.

Equity: The amount of the property value that the owner actually owns outright, rather than owes to the lender. E.g.: if a property is worth $400,000 and the mortgage owing is $100,000 then the owner's equity is $300,000 (or 75%).

Fee Simple: The title to a property where there are no restrictions in the manner in which it can be held, kept or inherited.

Freehold: This usually refers to the land on which there is no mortgage left.

GV: Commonly known, as Government Valuation is the property valuation carried out by the Council for Rates purposes. The GV has now replaced the Ratings Valuation RV.

Joint tenancy: Two or more persons own the property. On the death of one of the owners, that person's share of the property automatically passes to the surviving owner(s).

Leasehold: Land, which is rented (leased) from a owner.

LIM report: A Land Information Management (LIM) report is issued by the local authority (council) giving details about the property such as rates owing, consents & drains and other noting pertaining to the property & its immediate surrounding. LIM report is used for property with an existing building.

Mortgage: A charge over the property of another given as security for a loan. It is a commonly used term for a home loan. There are various types of mortgages.

Mortgagee: The lender taking a mortgage.

Mortgagor: The borrower giving a mortgage.

Nominee: The person nominated by the buyer to complete the purchase and buy the property.

The A-Z of Common Terms in the Process

Auction: In an auction, potential buyers bid against each other to purchase a property. Auctions are held at site of the property or at the Real estate agent' office. Auction sales are always unconditional. Usually a 10% deposit is required to be paid at the fall of the "Sold" hammer.

Body Corporate: This is a term used in relation to apartments. The Body corporate is the owner's group that supervises the building maintenance, collects & pays insurance premiums and supervises the use of common areas.

What is Cross Lease: A cross is a piece of land, which has a number of dwellings built on it and is subject to a registered lease. The Landowners own the land together in shares and lease the area of the land under and around their dwellings back to each other.

Certificate of Title: Is a document showing the legal ownership of the property or land.

Cross lease title: Each owner holds a "Composite" certificate of title, which records the land share plus the lease. The lease is usually for a period of 999 years and the share corresponds to the number of dwellings units on the property. The cross-lease plan is attached to the certificate of title and shows the dwellings as "Flats".

Caveat: It is a warning notice registered against the title to the land that another party may have an interest or right on that property that will prevent the title to the land being transferred to anyone else.

Chattels: Are items of moveable property that are included in the sale. E.g.; Carpets, Curtains, Stove etc. Chattels to be included in the house sale must be listed individually in the agreement.

Code of Compliance Certificate (CCC): The CCC is issued by the local authority (city council) stating that the building complies with the provisions of the Building Act and the Building Permit issued to carry out the work.

Conditional/Unconditional: The Agreement can be either "Conditional" or "Unconditional". A conditional contract has conditions such as finance approval, LIM report, Builders report etc. which have to be satisfied before the contract can become binding on both parties. An unconditional agreement is a contract that is not bound by any conditions.

Home Loan types

Broadly there are three types of loans.

Fixed: Your interest rate and repayments stay the same for the fixed rate period (from 6 months to five years). This is a good option if:

You need certainty so you can budget accurately.

You don't intend to make extra repayments during the fixed rate period.

But It's not as flexible as a floating rate loan – if you make an extra repayment on your loan that is the first extra repayment in that year, and it's no more than 5% of the loan amount you owe on your loan when the repayment is made, you won't be charged an early repayment recovery.

Floating: Your interest rate can go up or down in line with changes in the market. This option is useful if:

You want the flexibility to make extra or lump sum repayments anytime – which means you could save on interest costs and repay your home loan faster.

You think your circumstances might change in the near future.

But If interest rates rise, so will your repayments – so if you're on a tight budget, you may want to consider putting at least some of your loan on a fixed rate.

Flexible: Put all your available money into this all-in-one home loan and transaction account. You could reduce your interest costs and may pay off your loan sooner. It gives you access to credit when you need it. This is useful if:
You want flexible access to credit.

You plan to credit your salary or other income to the account to reduce the outstanding balance and save on interest costs.

You're good at managing your money. But you need to be disciplined with your finances to get the best out of this option.

Interest only loan: Interest only loans are ideal to cover short term situations. For example, you may need bridging finance while another home is being sold or for an investment property. You only pay the interest on the money you have borrowed for an agreed time. At the end of the interest only term you repay the whole loan or could request to switch to a loan where your repayments are then made up of both interest and principal (the money you borrowed).

Construction Loans: Construction loans start as an interest only loan with a maximum limit that can be drawn as progress payments are required by the builder. Typically, at conception, the loan may only be drawn sufficient to fund your section purchase however the loan 'limit' will be set at a level sufficient to cover your section purchase (if required) plus the amount of your fixed price build contract, or build budget, depending on the nature of your project. At completion of the build, your loan will be converted to a standard table, interest only, reducing or revolving credit loan or combination of these as required and approved prior to commencement of your build project. Speak to your adviser to find out the best option to go with your financial goals.

Managing your home loan

Make extra mortgage repayments. If you can afford to, consider: Paying a bit extra each time you make a mortgage repayment, and/or Making a lump sum repayment if you come into a bit of money (for example if you get a tax return or a bonus).

How much extra can you pay? That depends on the kind of mortgage you have: If you have a Floating Rate or Flexible Home Loan you can make extra payments any time you like and as much as you like, with no fee. If you make an extra repayment on your Fixed Rate home loan and no more than 5% of the loan amount you owe then you will not incur an Early Repayment cost*. An Early Repayment Admin Fee may apply*. Varies depending on lender*

Make repayments frequently. By making repayments more frequently (e.g. fortnightly instead of monthly) you actually repay slightly more over the year. That reduces the amount you owe (your principal) faster, which in turn reduces the overall interest you pay.

In the example given below, based on a home loan of $400,000 at an interest rate of 6% p.a., switching from monthly to fortnightly repayments would mean save you $98,000 in interest – and you'd repay your mortgage 6.5 years faster! The example below is also based on the assumption that the 6% interest rate remains the same for the duration of the loan.

Repayments	Monthly	Fortnightly
Your repayments:	$2,400	$1,200
Total annual repayments:	$28,800	$31,200
Time taken to repay your loan:	30 years	23.5 years
Your total interest cost:	$463,000	$365,000

Should you put extra money into savings instead of repaying your mortgage? It's your choice and the answer is different for everyone – some people prefer to focus on reducing debt; others prefer to build up some savings as well. However, keep in mind that the interest you save on your mortgage may be more than the interest you'd earn in a savings account.

Keep your mortgage repayments the same if interest rates fall If you have a Floating Home Loan and interest rates fall, your repayments will automatically reduce. But if you want to, you can keep your payments at the same level. That extra money will go towards reducing your principal, which means you'll pay less in interest and repay your mortgage faster.

Revolving Credit Facility If you're disciplined and good at managing your money, a Revolving credit facility, also known as Flexible Home Loan can be a good way to get mortgage-free faster. It is like a normal transaction account and home loan in one. Interest is calculated daily and charged monthly, so by keeping as much money in the account as you can at any given time for as long as you can, you can reduce the overall amount of interest you pay – and repay your mortgage sooner.

Understanding The Buying Process

First time buyers will face a multitude of emotions: excitement, anxiety and confusion to name a few – all of which may cloud judgment when it comes to making big decisions. Solid preparation and a knowledge of the process will put you on the right track to buying the house of your dreams. The first step in home ownership is knowing exactly what you can afford to buy. Your Adviser will inform you of your loan amount eligibility so that you know where you stand financially from the beginning - this will help when it comes to formally approving your loan. During your search, you may come across a number of different buying methods of purchasing property. Here are the three most common:

1. Tender

This is a blind offer for a property that does not come with a price tag. Interested parties make an offer in writing to be opened by the vendor on an agreed date. You will not know the competing offers or the house value – unless independently surveyed. Your offer may come with a list of conditions but you could potentially be bidding against someone with a similar offer without conditions. For that reason, the sale may go in their favour.

2. Private Treaty / Offer And Negotiation

Similar to tender, but the house will have a publicly known value. The buyer can negotiate back and forth with the seller over the price and conditions. This allows for the buyer to have more control and put more conditions on the offer before committing.

3. Auction

Unlike the tender, you are openly bidding against others interested in the same property. If you win, the offer is considered unconditional which means you can't back out of it. View the property before attending any auction and if you are serious about bidding, it is a good idea to do your due diligence first by investing in a building inspection and meth testing beforehand. It is important to leave the emotions at the door and have a maximum price in mind and not to go above.

BUILDING AND METH INSPECTIONS

Congratulations on finding your dream home. It is a huge achievement and undoubtedly a big investment. This could potentially be your abode for the next five to ten years or more, so it is wise to have the property fully inspected before its too late.

ADDITIONAL COSTS FOR FIRST TIME BUYERS TO PLAN FOR

First time buyers should be aware that there are often additional costs associated with purchasing a property. Building and Meth inspections are not obligatory, but are highly recommended to identify existing problems before purchase rather than foot a hefty bill to rectify the problem afterwards. There are generally certain legal and loan establishment costs that your lender will pass onto you, so it is advisable to ask about such fees in advance. Lawyer fees will also need to be factored into your costs. Before you purchase a property, it is important to purchase a Land Information Memorandum Report (LIM) and go through it with your lawyer. The report cost varies around $250 to $400. A LIM Report is a summary of information that the council holds on a property. Another useful source of information is a Property File, which includes information on building and drainage and building consents. Your solicitor or conveyancer may advise you to obtain a new survey of the property which will add further costs.
